Mando Maire

Emerging from her American roots and now firmly anchored in Europe, where she splits time between Amsterdam and her apple farm on the Silver Coast of Portugal, Mando has etched her name into the global art scene with a honed craft that straddles both raw expression and refined gallery work.

Mando's artistry is a harmonious union of graphic stencil elements and painterly finesse. Her highly recognizable and extremely rich visual language blurs the lines between a nostalgic familiarity and contemporary freshness.

She's a die hard creator with a meticulous devotion to hand-drawn and hand-cut stencils. Her use of vintage sewing patterns and twin imagery are hallmark in her studio works.

Her pieces, characterized by her trademark style, simultaneously evoke youthful innocence and delve into haunting nostalgia. Bridging comfort and spookiness, her gallery creations mirror the dualities defining her artistic identity. Mando's art captivates aficionados from both street and fine art realms, radiating a nuanced tension that invites viewers into the deep well of human experiences.

Under the online moniker "seeyouthroughit," she channels her artistry and outlook,echoing a gentle and affirming perspective on both art and life.

Mando's journey is one that elicits admiration and connection in equal measure. Revered by peers and audiences alike, her influence transcends the confines of street art, resonating deeply with the discerning eyes of fine art connoisseurs.

Artist Statement

Take Me Down, like many of my titles, like much of my work in general, is all about multiple meanings and feelings. To be 'taken down a notch' is humbling. To be 'taken down' to the beach is a nice afternoon. The richness of meaning in a single expression or image is something I'm always hunting for. The surface is always one thing, but the ideas and areas underneath need to be multiple, complex, and authentic.
